Santa Rosa Business College.
Our Own Building, Built for Ourselves, For a Business College.
An Interesting Spot.
Statuary hall is one of the most interesting apartments in the capital. It contains the stone and bronze statues of a number of Americans distinguished alike in war and peace—famous generals, statesmen, explorers and diplomats—contributed to the general government by the several states, each state selecting its most illustrious sons. Included among these statues are those of George Washington and Thomas H. Benton of Virginia, Daniel Webster and General Starke of New Hampshire, Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, and H. H. Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania, Ethan Allen of Vermont, Cass of Michigan, General James A. Garfield and Allen of Ohio, Roger Sherman of Connecticut, John Jay of New York, Richard Stockton and the dashing General Phil Kearny of New Jersey, Abraham Lincoln and General Shields of Missouri, Pierre Marquette, the priest explorer of Wisconsin; Senator Kenney of West Virginia and Clinton of New York.
Rite Range For Guard.
An effort is now being made to secure the participation of the cavalry stationed at Fort Myer and the marines stationed at the marine barracks in this city in rifle practice at the District of Columbia national guard range, near Hillsdale. If a satisfactory arrangement can be made the troubles of the local militia will be at an end, for the regular establishment will provide the funds and labor necessary to complete the range, thus throwing it open for use.

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special correspondence.]
The policy which the government has adopted in the rural free delivery service of designating places by route numbers seems destined to hasten the time when all mankind will be known by number and when local terms will give way to Arabic numerals. Persons living on long roads extending through Canterbury, N. H., for example, should be addressed as "R. F. D. No. 2, Concord, N. H." When the rural free delivery service becomes universal all letters, if properly addressed, will bear the name of the distributing point, which will always be a city or a large town, and the number of the route leading from it. It will be unimportant for correspondents to remember the township in which their friend lives, but highly necessary to know the city from which his rural route starts and presumably his number.

New Guatemalan Minister.
Senator Don Jorge Munoz, the successor of Senator Don Antonio Lazo Arriaga as the minister plenipotentiary of Guatemala to the United States, has arrived in this city and presented his credentials to President Roosevelt. The presentation was made by Acting Secretary Loomis in the blue parlor of the White House.

Speedy Typewriting.
A new record for speed copying on a typewriter has been made at the patent office. Miss Mary Pretty of that office until recently held the record of 22,000 words in seven hours, but Miss O. R. Cameron of the same office now has 23,000 words to her credit in the same time.

The Public Library.
The Public library was opened for registration Dec. 16, 1898, and the first books were issued Jan. 10, 1899. Within the five and a half years the number of volumes has increased from 12,000 to more than 70,000, the number of employees from three to thirty-nine, and the rented, overcrowded library building of 1899 has been replaced by the attractive and spacious structure of marble, costing $375,000 and donated by Mr. Carnegie.

Soldiers' Home.
The secretary of war has received the annual report of the board of commissioners of the Soldiers' home, through Major General Ainsworth, the military secretary, who is president of the board. The number of beneficiaries on the rolls June 30 last was 1,392, a decrease of 83 since the last previous report. Of the total number enrolled 850 are at the home, 12 less than last year; 314 on outdoor relief, 39 in the Government Hospital for the Insane, 32 on furlough, 52 in the general hospital at Fort Bayard, N. M., and 6 are absent without leave. The daily average number of inmates during the year was 922 and the total number of deaths 121, of which number one committed suicide.

Clothing For Soldiers.
The recent order of the war department directing that soldiers' clothing for the Schuykill arsenal, Philadelphia, be made by contract has been canceled by the president, and the president will direct that the work be given to the women who have heretofore done it, most of them being widows, wives and daughters of ex-soldiers. About 8,000 of them have worked on soldiers' garments for years, but by degrees it has been taken from them and given out by contract.

Aid For Alaska Indians.
Lieutenant G. T. Emmons, U. S. N., retired, has held several conferences with President Roosevelt about the conditions of the Alaskan natives during the winter season. Lieutenant Emmons has spent much time among the Alaska natives and has studied them and their needs fully. He has made some recommendations, which have been turned over to Assistant Secretary Oliver of the war department. His recommendations involve the distribution of rations to the Copper river and other Indians during the winter from the army posts in Alaska. This plan was laid last winter.

The District Almshouse.
Building Inspector Snowden Ashford has completed the plans for the new District almshouse to be built at Shepherd's landing and has forwarded the specifications to the printer. The building will cost about $200,000.

THE ART OF SUCCESS.

It is Nothing More Than Getting Along With People.

"What a fine fellow Percy X. is!" remarked a business man one day to a lawyer friend.
"Yes," rejoined the lawyer, "he is. But he has been with the K's," naming a great corporation, "for ten years now, and he is getting only $150 per month. He has a wife and three children, and, with their tastes, I fancy they have all they can do to live comfortably. He ought to be earning more with his education and capacity."

"Why doesn't he rise faster?"
"I'll tell you. He doesn't rise and he can't rise until he learns how to get along with people. He can't manage men at all. If he tries he gets himself disliked, and he keeps them in a constant state of irritation."

A similar conversation was recently overheard between two business men. Said one: "I hear that young Paul G., only four years out of college, has been placed at the head of the T. branch of the Y. company. I didn't know he was so smart. What is his strong point?"

"He is a great fellow to get along with people," answered the other man. "No man would of course be put in a place of such responsibility without integrity, fair quickness and ability and good education. But there are scores of men who have all of those qualities, and yet they do not go forward because they cannot exercise authority. If they receive any they either make the men under them cross and restive by petty tyrannies or else they are too good natured and lose the respect of the men, are imposed on by them and don't get good work out of them. It seems to be the rarest thing in the world to find young men who have dignity and keenness enough to maintain discipline and yet can make their subordinates bear the yoke cheerfully and render good service."

A third young man was characterized by the president of a great railroad thus: "I haven't had a chance to talk with him and find out how much he knows, but I have watched him several times as he manipulated a gang of men, and he has for weeks managed them wonderfully. We have rarely had a man in our employ who could get so much work out of a lot of men and at the same time could keep them so decently good tempered."—Independent.

LABOR.

Labor is the ornament of the citizen.—Schiller.

Labor, wide as the earth, has its summit in heaven.—Carlyle.

Learning is pleasurable, but doing is the height of enjoyment.—Novalis.

What is there that is illustrious that is not also attended by labor?—Cicero.

The fruit derived from labor is the sweetness of all pleasures.—Vaubanergues.

The lottery of honest labor, drawn by Time, is the only one whose prizes are worth taking up and carrying home.—Theodore Parker.

Labor is the tallman that has raised man from the savage; that has given us plenty, comfort, elegance, instead of want, misery and barbarism.—McCulloch.

A Story of Senator Vest.
The late Senator Vest of Missouri used to say that the hardest question he ever was called upon to answer was put by the Rev. Dr. Styles, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Frankfort, Ky., in which the senator's father and mother held membership. Mr. Vest met the clergyman in Missouri, and the preacher said: "Well, George, are you yet within the folds of the church, and do you still remember the teachings of your good father and mother, long since dead and in heaven, where I soon expect to join them? Now, when I tell them about you when we meet, about your Christian life, your daily walk and conversation?" The senator declared he felt himself growing pale as he walked away without even attempting to reply.

Ground That Burns.
In the great wheatfields of California a boy, whose part in the process does not at first appear to the outsider, skirmishes along near the reapers with a wet sack, pounding madly here and there. He is the fire tender. Once set off, this grain, baked as it is by a rainless summer, would burn like a flash. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have gone up in an hour on these delta lands, for here even the ground burns. The soil is made of matted tule reeds, laid down in successive rotting strata by the river. When once uncovered and dried in the sun, it smolders with a slow persistence, like a sawdust fire. The harvesters work above a potential volcano.—Everybody's Magazine.

One Phase of Mexican Etiquette.
Mexican etiquette is peculiar, as is shown by the following quotation from a letter written by a Spanish woman while traveling in that country: "There is one piece of etiquette entirely Mexican, nor can I imagine whence derived, by which it is ordained that all new arrivals, whatever their rank, foreign ministers not excepted, must, in solemn print, give notice to every family of any consideration in the capital that they have arrived and put themselves and their homes at the disposition of the residents, falling in which etiquette the newly arrived family will remain unnoticed and unknown."

First Aid.
Edith—Is it true, Dolly, that Larkin kissed you before he picked you up in that runaway? Dolly—Yes, dear; you know he is studying to be a doctor, and that was first aid to the injured.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A LAMB AND ITS DAM.

The Way the Eve Recognizes Its Own Offspring.

Although sheep can see and hear very well, it is undoubtedly by the sense of smell that the ewes recognize their own offspring. Sir Herbert Maxwell relates an interesting example of this odd fact, citing the case of a Cheviot lamb which had fallen into a river and, owing to the steepness of the bank, could not climb out.

An angler, who was fishing in the stream, rescued the shivering animal, and it staggered away, bleating pitifully for its dam. It found her without much difficulty, but the mother, sniffing disdainfully at the dripping little wretch, pushed it off, refusing to recognize it. The angler appealed to a shepherd who happened to pass that way for an explanation of the ewe's behavior. "Oh," said he, "the bit beastie's been in the water, ye see, and the auld ewe canna smell it. She'll tak it back as soon as it's dry."

And so it turned out. The fleece was soon dried, the natural odor returning, and the mother and child were reconciled and reunited at once.

The Steam Engine.

The steam engine was made perfectly automatic by a lazy boy who was employed to open and close the valves. Desiring to play instead of to work, he tied a string from one part of the machine to another, thus making the engine itself attend to its own business. He was never heard of again, and even his name is unknown, but a perfect engine was the outcome of his laziness.

By Way of Preparation.
"Our landlady is awfully clever. The other morning she asked us if we knew that a constant diet of sour milk would prolong life."

"Why did she do that?"
"Well, we discovered a little later that the milk wasn't as sweet as it should have been."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OLD FASHIONED.

An old fashioned woman feels mighty extravagant when she eats a meal at a restaurant.

What has become of the old fashioned bride who expected, of course, to do her own washing?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who pierced the children's ears to strengthen their eyes?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who made soup so thick that she referred to it as meat, drink and lodging?

What has become of the old fashioned apple pie that contained bits of raw apple inside and was as mountainous as the Himalayas?

When an old fashioned woman goes away on a trip her last words are, "I just know something terrible will happen here and see that I have a compartment reserved for me." And Bobbie did.

Lost His Dignity.
An Englishman who holds a colonial governorship or similar office loses the prestige that attaches to that office as soon as he arrives in England. In this connection a story is told of the Duchess of Devonshire and Lord Crewe, then lieutenant governor of Ireland. They were on the same boat going from Ireland to England, and on the voyage she showed him all the deference due his rank. But she loved a joke too dearly to miss the opportunity the landing offered. As they were descending the gang plank she suddenly exclaimed in a peremptory tone, as though addressing a boy of no importance, "Now, Bobbie, just take hold of this bag and run on ahead like a good boy and see that I have a compartment reserved for me." And Bobbie did.

ANOTHER LIE NAILED

"Everybody knows my politics," said Lorenzo D. Jacks, the well known local hop merchant and capitalist yesterday when discussing the Call's article on Monday charging that Congressman Bell had been worsted in an argument with Congressman McLachlan on the train between Sacramento and Susan on Sunday, "but I happened to be on the train myself and seated directly behind the gentlemen all the way down, and I know that the matter was not at all as reported. I am a Republican, but I won't stand by and see any man lied about like that no matter what his position or politics may be.

"We were on the way down from Sacramento," Mr. Jacks continued, "in the seat right in front of me were Congressman McLachlan, D. E. McKinlay, J. W. Cavanagh, who is a Call reporter, and a man I did not know, but whom I now presume from the Call's article, was Thomas Dozier. At Elmira Mr. Bell got aboard. He came through the car, and as he came up to McLachlan and McKinlay he stopped and shook hands. They joked together for a moment or two and then the man I did not know got up and excused himself and left the car, inviting Mr. Bell to take his seat. Mr. Bell did so, and a few moments later Mr. McKinlay was called into another car. Bell and McLachlan talked on different subjects for a while and finally got around to the campaign.

"I did not pay much attention to what the gentlemen were talking about until they got into an argument as to certain features of the campaign now on. It was a good-natured argument, and although McLachlan—in a technical way it looked to me apparently tried to make Bell admit certain things, the latter clearly had the best of it, and finally laughed and said, or words to that effect:

"I wasn't born yesterday, and I know as well as you do what you are traveling through this district with McKinlay for. While you do not say all these things yourself, you sit on the platform and allow them to be said in your presence and in that way give your implied endorsement as a member of Congress to a good many things that are not borne out by the records. You know that some of the 'claims' 'Mc' makes are not correct, and while it's your business and not mine, it looks to me like a queer way to do politics."

"Instead of confessing to anything," continued Mr. Jacks, "Bell stood his ground and really backed McLachlan down and off the board. He shut McLachlan up completely. At Napa Junction, Bell, Cavanagh and I got off, while McLachlan and McKinlay went on to San Francisco. Soon after the train carrying the latter gentlemen had pulled out, Mr. Bell discovered that in leaving the car he had by mistake picked up somebody else's valise instead of his own. It was a good deal like his, and in our presence he opened it to see if he could find out who it belonged to. Right on top was Duncan McKinlay's picture, so the Call reporter (Cavanagh) telegraphed to McKinlay that he (McKinlay) had Bell's valise, and to send it back and he (Cavanagh) would look out for his (McKinlay's).")

"That's all there is to the yarn," concluded Mr. Jacks, "and I was a good deal surprised to see how the thing was garbled and twisted around in the Call this morning."

Mr. Jacks is one of the best known and most reputable citizens of Santa Rosa. He is a hop merchant by occupation, and also operates two extensive yards, one near this city and the other not far from Healdsburg. In politics Mr. Jacks is a Republican. He is a son-in-law of Col. H. W. Byington, the well known local capitalist and former Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, who made a most enviable record as a public official while occupying the above office at Sacramento a few years ago.—Press- Democrat, Oct. 17.

FAVORED BY BOTH PARTIES

Republicans and Democrats alike praise Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and all throat and lung diseases, as no other remedy can compare with it. It is safe and sure. F. T. Slater, merchant, 171 Main St., Gloucester, Mass writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar cured me of a very bad cough which I had for three months though other remedies failed to benefit me. I can highly recommend it for coughs and colds." Sold by L. S. Simmons, druggist.

Fresh fish every week at D. A. Fussell's market.

CURED CONSUMPTION.

Mrs. B. W. Evans, Clearwater, Kan., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him. That was six years ago. Since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal." 25c, 50c, $1. at Simmons' drug store.

COUNTERFEITING

THE GENUINE.
 Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered as no other preparation will give the same satisfaction. It is mildly laxative. It contains no opiates and is safest for children and delicate persons. Sold by L. S. Simmons, druggist.

Daily Call and Expositor combined for only $8.50. if paid in advance. Subscribe now at the Expositor office.

A PHYSICIAN HEALED.

Dr. Geo. Ewing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky., for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Foley's Kidney Cure: "For years I had been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostate gland. I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced using Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles. I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success." Sold by L. S. Simmons, druggist.

D. A. Fussell has on hand a large supply of the famous Lake potatoes, large, white and sound. There are none better.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by Shoults, druggist. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottles free.

A. W. Weaver of El Verano will repair your vehicle for you and make it better than a new one.

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, jaundice, Fever, Constipation, all yield to this perfect pill. 25c, at Shoults' drug store.

NOT A SICK DAY SINCE.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass of Fremont N. C. writes. Only 50 cents, at Shoults' drug store.

An kinds of St. Helena Health Foods at Schocken's. Try them they will do you good.

CONSTIPATION.

Health is almost impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla., writes, Feb. 12, 1902: "Having tried Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation. 50c, at Simmons' drug store.

Bills Ordered Paid. Other Important Business Transacted

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma was held in the Pavilion Wednesday evening, all members present, President Poppe presiding.

The following bills were allowed:

D. Valente, labor, etc.	$12 10
J. H. Albertson, salary	15 00
Preston R. Davis, hydrant	5 50
E. Altemani, curbing	42 70
M. Haraszthy, labor	6 00
Wm. Weyl, street work	2 00
Fred Fouts, hauling gravel	86 50
Sonoma Valley Co., lights	28 24
H. Munfrey, repairs	1 00
J. B. Small, salary	25 00

A lengthy discussion was had as to the details of the plans and specifications for the new city hall. A number of good suggestions were offered by the various members of the board and these suggestions were incorporated into the specifications.

All the members wish to be as expeditious as possible in constructing the new city building and a special meeting will be held next week to complete the specifications in order that the advertisement calling for bids may be published by Nov. 12. After considerable discussion as to the price the city should pay for water it seemed to be the majority opinion that $15 per month for water for fire and street sprinkling would be all the city could afford at the present time. This is the lowest rate paid by any city in California.

Adjourned to the call of the chair.

BOOZE-BRADY-BRUISED!

It was Sunday morning. Brady was feeling large at the vineyards east of town. He is alleged to have attempted with a big butcher knife, to show others that he was as big as he felt and in doing so ran against a snag in the shape of an iron bar in the hands of one Chas. Brown.

Brady immediately sought a doctor and a constable. They both did their duty by him. Brown was arrested. So was Brady. Brady secured the services of Attorney Will Cowan of Santa Rosa. A trial on Monday afternoon before Judge Small resulted in the discharge of Brown and Brady who paid the costs of action. The evidence showed that Brady was the aggressor and obtained his full share of results. The gash on his face will soon heal and he will probably be able to walk more in the straight and narrow way when his two optics can be allowed to carry out their proper functions.

A UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA LETTER

University of California, Oct. 29.—The short courses in agriculture for 1904 will commence last Tuesday, Oct. 25th, simultaneously with the opening of the University Farmers' Institute. The short courses have developed into a very important branch of the university's curriculum, and this year will include several lines of instruction not heretofore offered during the short-course period.

Among these subjects will be Animal Industry, seven courses in which will be taught by Assistant Professor E. W. Major, Assistant Professor A. R. Ward and Mr. H. M. Hall. The instruction in Animal Industry will embrace courses in beef cattle, sheep and swine, horses, live-stock management, feeding farm animals, veterinary science, minor surgery and stock-poisoning plants.

Another entirely new topic will be that of Nutrition, four courses in which will be offered by Assistant Professor M. E. Jaffa. His subjects will be, in addition to a laboratory course, principles of animal nutrition, nutritive and economic value of foods, and food adulteration.

Courses in Viticulture, both theoretical and practical, will be given for the first time in a short-course period by Assistant Professor E. H. Twilight. In addition to these new departments, courses will be given in several branches of general agriculture, horticulture, and entomology. The school of dairying has been in operation since Oct. 11th, with a large attendance. All of the short courses are to close on Dec. 9th.

A notable step toward the realization of the plans for the Greater University will soon be taken in the construction of a main driveway and walk through the campus. This new highway will run from the Dana street entrance to the grounds eastward by the gymnasium and the chemistry building to the College avenue entrance. It will be about a half a mile in length.

Exercises in memory of the late Marius Joseph Spinello, instructor in French and Italian, who met his death in a distressing railway accident shortly after the close of the last college term, were held at the university last Monday afternoon. The speakers were President Wheeler and Professors H. Morse Stephens, Frank Soule, Chauncey W. Wells, and Samuel A. Chambers and F. W. Blanchard of the class of 1904. A committee was appointed to raise funds for this purchase for the university of Mr. Spinello's private library as a memorial to him.

The junior day play this year will be a farce entitled "Just About Now," written by W. R. DeLeon of Berkeley and selected from a competition of farces written by various members of the junior class. Junior day, as is customary, will occur the Friday after Thanksgiving.

Arrangements have been made for the university football team to play two games this year after the intercollegiate match with Stanford. All Thanksgiving day the eleven will play a team from the University of Washington at Seattle and on Christmas day will meet the Sherman Indians at Los Angeles. Arrangements are also being made for a game with some eastern university team to be played in San Francisco on New Year's day.

Delightful Luncheon

Given at the High School To the Misses Dewey Last Wednesday

The High School was the scene of a merry gathering on Wednesday, the occasion being a luncheon given by the class of '06, in honor of the Misses Dewey.

The girls of the class, gowned in white with red ribbons, ushered their guests into the banquet room which was tastefully decorated with trailing vines and streamers of crepe paper in the class colors, cardinal and white.

The blinds were closed and red shaded lamps shed soft light on the merry scene. The table was decorated with smilax and red and white flowers.

The hand-painted place cards, the work of Miss Janet Munfrey, were dainty and unique. They bore the class pennant and were inscribed with fitting quotations.

There were tempting edibles of all kinds in abundance to which those present did ample justice.

Miss Fraser proved a royal toast-mistress and under her able direction there was, "A feast of reason and a flow of soul." The Misses Dewey each responded gracefully to the hearty welcome accorded them.

Toasts to "The Faculty, University of California," at which Miss Constance Dewey is a student, "Stanford," of which Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Lewis are graduates, "Friendship," "The Class of '06," and "The Cooks," were proposed and enthusiastically received. The bell at 1:15 calling teachers and scholars back to school tasks was reluctantly obeyed, and all agreed that the affair was one of the most enjoyable of the year.

Those present were: Misses Marion and Constance Dewey, Maud Fraser, Edna Thomas, Janet Munfrey, Hazel Gies, Jeannette Harris, Ethel Potter, Pearl Bailey, Elizabeth Davis and Messrs. Montgomery, Lewis, Clewe, Hotz, Ashe and Gotenberg.

A CALIFORNIA WONDER

A ride about the valley now will convince any one that California—especially the Sonoma Valley—is a wonderful land.

Poppies and many other wild flowers are in bloom now (in this bleak (?) November). Cherry and other trees are also out in spring attire.

DR. SPRAGUE LEAVES

Dr. F. F. Sprague and wife left Thursday afternoon for Vacaville, where the doctor has accepted a very flattering offer to take the practice of Dr. Stitt.

A successful practice and a congenial new home is the wish of their Sonoma Valley friends.

Local News of Interest

Wednesday night a collision occurred on upper Napa street that came near proving serious. Mr. Stonier and another man were approaching each other when their rigs came together with great force, throwing the latter out. Damages to harness and rigs was the result.

You can rubber if you have your washing done at the Sonoma French Laundry. No saw edges on your collars.

The many friends of John Revie will be happy to know that the operation performed upon his back in San Francisco Wednesday has as far proven very successful and the attending physicians are confident that he will entirely recover from the paralysis of his legs and arms, caused from a slight displacement of five vertebrae of the spinal column. Mr. Revie suffered the injury from a fall several months ago.

GETS SEVERE TREATMENT AT THE CHUTES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

A number of our townspeople, who have visited the Chutes in San Francisco and observed the view from the top of the theatre, have doubtless noticed the Elaterite or Mastic with which the roof is covered. It was laid when the building was erected, nearly three years ago, and has been trampled upon by hundreds of people every day since. The extraordinary durability of this roofing is demonstrated by the fact that, in spite of the severe treatment it receives, it has not yet been impaired to any perceptible extent and is not only as good now as when it was laid, but is even more firmly set than before. This is but one of the many instances where Elaterite or Mastic fills a want that nothing else can and substantiates the claim that this roofing does not wear out. Ask for samples and full information from Sam Meyer, Healdsburg, distributor for Sonoma, Lake and Mendocino counties, or A. S. Whiting, Agent, Sonoma.

AN ACCIDENTAL OMISSION

In our account of the Catholic Fair in last week's issue we unintentionally omitted the names of Miss Leonora Quartaroli and Randal A. McDonnell.

The former is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Quartaroli, and assisted very materially in the success of the minstrels by presiding at the piano throughout the entire performance.

Mr. McDonnell acted as interlocutor and played his part remarkably well. He has a strong, commanding voice and a keen sense of humor which was much appreciated.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Democratic Meeting

Hon. T. J. Geary and Hon.

Chas. Dunbar Spoke to Large Audience

The anvils roared, the bon fires glowed and the Sonoma Brass Band played lively airs, and bells were continually ringing, to swell the volume of enthusiasm at the great democratic rally in Union Hall last night. The El Verano Democratic Club came over in full force and were chuck full of enthusiasm for the cause.

F. T. Duhring was the chairman of the evening and made a few appropriate remarks in which he feelingly referred to the cause of Blair Hart's absence, his wife's sister having passed away at his home in Lakeville yesterday morning.

Hon. C. O. Dunbar was the first speaker and the hearty applause with which his appearance was greeted bespoke the popularity of the able young assemblyman. Mr. Dunbar made a short but proper and telling speech and the frequent applause with which his remarks were received showed that his audience were with him in his just and laudable ambition to again serve the people in this Assembly district.

Mr. Dunbar spoke modestly of his record and as the people know of his good work, there is no doubt that the proper appreciation will be shown on election day. His majority seems well assured.

Hon. T. J. Geary's speech was great—eloquent, patriotic, convincing and laden with deep thought and logic.

He knocked out Duncan E. McKinlay's argument to the satisfaction of all, that only a member of the majority has any influence in Washington. He spoke of the absolute necessity of a revision of the tariff taking the unanswerable ground that a percentage equal to a difference of the cost of product between our country and foreign countries, should be the standard of tariff rates. His reference to our able and popular young statesman, Theodore A. Bell, of Napa, was greeted with deafening applause and the plea for his re-election fell on willing ears. Everybody admired Mr. Geary's masterful speech.

Mrs. Pauli and Roy Pauli furnished good music for a social dance after the speaking.

AN ACCIDENTAL OMISSION

In our account of the Catholic Fair in last week's issue we unintentionally omitted the names of Miss Leonora Quartaroli and Randal A. McDonnell.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL

A large and jolly crowd attended the Halloween social given by the ladies of the M. E. church Monday evening. Many unique and entertaining games were played and the following program was ably rendered: Misses Laura Fussell and Pearl Bailey, vocal duet; Miss Constance Dewey, vocal solo; Mrs. Rowe, vocal solo; Miss Myrtle Minkie, recitation; ghost march by several young ladies carrying designedly punctured pumpkins with lighted candles inside. They looked more like angels than spooks, however. Refreshments were served. The proceeds, from the untiring efforts of those who made the affair a success, amounts to a very satisfactory sum.

Mrs. J. A. Poppe is making improvements in her property, corner of Vallejo and 1st St. West. The building will be entirely renovated inside and improved in many ways. It will be almost reconstructed and will be for rent when the work is finished.

Runaway Accident

Sister-in-law of Supervisor

Blair Hart Fatally Injured

Mrs. James Banton, of Lakeville, a sister-in-law of Supervisor Blair Hart, was seriously injured in a runaway accident near her home there last Sunday. She was driving on the Lakeville road near a railroad crossing, when the horse took fright and she was thrown to the ground, her head striking on the railroad, rendering her unconscious. Assistance was soon at hand and she was removed to the home of Blair Hart near by. The horse was caught after running quite a distance. The buggy was wrecked.

A physician was hurriedly summoned and attended the injured woman. She received a scalp wound, a cut on the forehead, her left leg was broken above the ankle, her arms were badly bruised, her neck was wrenched and bruised and it is feared she is internally injured.

Later—Word reached here last night that Mrs. James Banton had passed away at the home of Blair Hart at Lakeville yesterday morning. Deceased was a very estimable lady. She leaves a husband and sister to mourn their loss.

A PROBLEM IN SAVING.

Suppose a man who has accumulated three hundred dollars in savings by putting away one dollar each day begins to draw out two dollars at night for each dollar he puts in the bank in the morning, how long will it take until his money is entirely gone? That's a problem of figures. Here's a problem of fact. If a man uses up in a day twice the strength which food supplies his body how long before he becomes bankrupt in health? That problem can't be figured exactly, but the result is absolutely sure—physical bankruptcy.

When the normal supply of food eaten does not keep up the normal strength there must be a loss, from some cause, of the nutrition contained in the food eaten. The common cause of this loss and its resulting weakness is disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive tract. It restores strength by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, which is the only source from which strength can be supplied to the body.

I cannot express my gratification in words. I had been suffering from indigestion so badly that I could not work more than half the time," writes Mr. Victor L. Hayden, of Blackstone, Nottoway Co., Va. "Now can work every day and eat anything I want. Why? Because I took Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has put new life and energy in me, restored my health and made a man of me once more. I used to weigh 170 but had gotten down to 144, now am back to 160 and will soon be back to my old weight if nothing happens. Your medicine has done it all. I cannot thank you enough for your advice."

How Hapgood Lost His Job

By HAROLD W. RAYMOND

Copyright, 1904, by the American Press Association

OVER the hills to the poorhouse I'm wendin' my way," sang "Devil Jim"

Hapgood as he climbed on board the front platform of the 11:45

on the C. and S. K. trolley line, threw open the window of the vestibule bull

for the protection of the motorman
and swung the lever of the controller.

A scattering flurry of snow flew in at the open window and stung him in the face, but he minded it not. Muffled

from head to foot in a shaggy ulster, with a collar which reached above his head, and that head buried in a double rimmed fur cap, with his hands protected by thick leather mitts, Jim was as impervious to the storm as a shaggy

brown bear, which he much resembled.

The 11:45 was the last car of the night on the little suburban road which ran over the hills from the city of S. K.

to the thriving manufacturing town of Chapelfield, not a thousand miles from New York. It was known as the "theater car." Usually it carried to their homes

a lively party of knifemakers or blast

furnace men, who, with their wives and best girls, had been down to the city for an evening's merry-making.

The run was about nine miles, four on the up grade, the remaining five, with many a curve and retrocession, down into the valley in which nestled the town whose passengers and freight furnished a reason for being for the busy little trolley line. But tonight the car was running light.

There were a few city passengers from the station, who were dropped off in due time, but no through ones. The day had been so stormy that the good folk of Chapelfield preferred to hug their own firesides, and soon the trolley man and conductor had the car all to themselves. Beemils, the conductor, having counted his change and made out his slips, snuggled down beside the heater

in a back corner of the car and prepared for a comfortable doze, a doze which was somewhat disturbed by the brazen

basso of Jim Hapgood's strident voice.

When Jim "cussed"—he was fluent in that accomplishment—it was a sign of good humor on his part. When he sang, look out! It was a sign to his friends to keep their distance, as Beemils was doing tonight. There was a dangerous devil lurking in Jim Hapgood's nature, the devil of an ugly temper, and when he tried to sing it was stirring.

"Hell's blazes!" cried Jim, breaking off in the middle of a stave. "Docked
three days' pay for fast runnin'!"

Warned that the next time he kin look for a job somewhere else! What harm did I do? Burnt out a fuse; that's all.

That might happen to any man on this up hill, down dale road. But that's the way it's been ever since this man Harker came up from New York, with his lockstep ideas of goin' just fast as an' so slow, an' devil take the man who don't keep dead on to the schedule.

"Over the hills to the—"

"Of course it comes just at a time
when a fellow can't afford the money.
Old woman worse than ever, an' the little gal down to York learnin' to be a stenographer, so she kin help out a little. Got a letter yesterday sayin' a winter cloak would come in mighty handy, as she feels the weather down there wuss'n she did up here in the country. Wonder how Harker would like it if his gal had to face the winter in summer duds just because there is a

"A fire, by jingo!"

In an instant Jim's troubles were blot-
ted out. He forgot he was Jim Hapgood,
the motorman, and remembered only that he was the captain of Excelsior Hose and that he was needed where that tongue of flame licked the black horizon.

Flinging open the door, he uttered a roar which brought the sleeping conductor to his feet.

"Hi, Hank!" said Hapgood. "There's a fire in the town. Looks like a big
one. I'm goin' to run for it."

"What do you mean, Jim?"

"Mean? That I'm goin' to let out every notch an' send this old car on the run of its life. Thought I'd let you know, so's you could jump off if you

are afeared."

"I am afraid, Jim," said the conductor, his face paling at the thought, "but my place is on the car. Don't be rash, Jim."

"No, I'll not be rash," said "Devil Jim," with a smile. He slammed the door, let go the handle of the brake and turned the lever as far as it would go. The bulky car sprang forward and downward like a catapult.

That ride Henry Beemils says he can never forget. The great twenty ton car rocked like a rocking horse. Its four wheels were never on the track at once.

And all the while the speed was increasing, for Jim Hapgood had no thought of using brake, and the grade was steadily downward. His thoughts were far ahead, in the pillar of flame now growing portentously large and near, wherein he saw his duty.

The bearded giant stood in the scant protection of his vestibule front, a modern Thor framed in ice. His eyes glowed with the joy of the soldier riding to the charge. He thought not of himself nor of the poor scared conductor behind him.

"It's wonder my hair didn't turn white," said Beemils afterward. "But what could I do? He'd 'a' killed me if I had interfered. I just hung on to the straps an' sort o' prayed."

But there is a special providence for brave men. The car, which seemed in the air most of the time, did not leave the rails. As the mad thing whirled into the outskirts of the town Jim set his heel to the song and for the next half mile executed a devil's chorus which awoke many sleepers along the way who had not been roused before by the dull tolling of the church bells.

As he neared the terminal Jim's strained eyes caught sight of the fire
in an opening between other buildings.
It was a large white frame structure on a little eminence, one "L" of which was blazing fiercely. Jim uttered a strangled cry.

It was the house of Harker, the superintendent.

The car was slackening speed and was running moderately when Jim caught the sound of a bell he loved—the bell of Excelsior Hose, which was coming down a cross street as fast as a handful of men and boys could pull it.

Jim flung open the door and jumped from his car, leaving it to run with lessening speed on to a siding and into a line of cars standing there. He smiled when he heard the crash, but a moment later was climbing up behind his cart and getting into his fireman's togs, which hung where he could get at them handily.

There had been only the most desultory attempt to check the flames, for while willing hands were plenty, they needed a leader. They did not want for one long. Jim Hapgood took command as naturally as if he had been born to the purple of a fire chief's existence, and in less time than it takes to write it he had several lines of hose connected with the hydrants.

The wing in which the fire started was doomed, but there was a good chance, with well directed efforts, of saving the rest. In a short time Jim the world. She begged him not to leave her. And Jim, who lavished on her a wealth of rough affection, buried his ambition and became a railroad man—just because his "rough riding"—and pretty rough riding it was too, at times—on the tops of freight trains.

Then came the wife, who was an invalid from the time their little girl was born. This steadied Jim more than anything which had gone before. When his daughter was a lass of twelve, he got a job as motorman on the new trolley line, because it enabled him to live at home, and for five years he had faced the elements on the front platform; rough work, this, but to his taste. His recreation was the little hose company of volunteer firemen, of which he was the captain. This was his safety valve, the outlet for those reckless qualities which had given him
the sobriquet of "Devil Jim." He drilled his company like a martinet and made it one of the most efficient in the state.

Given a good, hot fire to fight, and Jim was in the seventh heaven of ecstasy. The little manufacturing town did not have many of these diversive ments, but occasionally there was a lively blaze. The population was a rough and careless one, the art of kind-ling fires and improving them with kerosene was not unknown among the housewives, the saloons were many and the liquor was bad, and as a logical sequence to such things got called out often enough to give its members a right to call themselves real firemen.
As for Jim, he had a "record." There was a handsome gold medal among the treasures of his little home. It had been given to him for entering a burning building and saving three lives at the imminent risk of his own.

So, you see, Jim Hapgood, "Devil Jim," was a person of some consequence in Chapelfield. And he was the owner of six months' residence imposing a fine
and threatening him with dismissal
because he had brought his car to the terminus a few minutes ahead of schedule time. It was more than mortal man could bear—at least such a man as Hapgood.

Jim's car pushed its way with varying speed up the long grade which ended at the divide, beyond which was a fire and descent to the river bank and the town which stood upon it. The glow of the furnaces seemed brighter than usual tonight against the blue black firmament, but not until he reached the summit did he realize that there was an unwanted tongue of flame reaching out from the clustering buildings.

"A fire, by jingo!"

In an instant Jim's troubles were blot-
ted out. He forgot he was Jim Hapgood,
the motorman, and remembered only that
he was the captain of Excelsior Hose and
that he was needed where that tongue of

Flinging open the door, he uttered a

"What do you mean, Jim?"

"Mean? That I'm goin' to let out ev-

know, so's you could jump off if you
are afeared."

"I am afraid, Jim," said the conductor, his face paling at the thought, "but

had half a hundred stout fellows bombarding the blazing pile with streams.

But where was Harker all this time?
He was not the sort of man to keep in the background. Jim's eyes scanned the faces of the workers and those of the crowd back of them. Nowhere did he see the boss whom he loved so little or the faces of Mrs. Harker and the two little girls.
